Numbers & Planets

Ruled by the number 2, and by the Moon, December 11th individuals can be good leaders, but better "team players" because of their qualities of strong character, imagination and the ability to foster and encourage new ideas.

The number 11 suggests a strong connection to the physical plane, and a deep appreciation of location. Like the calm after a storm, after conflict, the December 11th person very likely retreats to a "safe" place to regroup.

The Day of Dynamic Drive

The December 11th individuals are not to be taken lightly, being described as intense, thoughtful, purposeful and well directed towards their goals. Deep thinkers, they often have a commanding physical presence as well, lending an air of authority to whatever the gathering.

Incredible conduits of energy, those born on this day can have a powerful impression on all they may come in contact with. Because of this sweeping energy, they have great effect in the lives of others - family, friends or colleagues. Not terribly skilled at concealing what they are thinking or feeling, it is very difficult for them to hide their emotions, usually written plainly on their face or in body language. On the other hand, these individuals may not be aware of what is obvious to others, and it can therefore be of great benefit for them to have an understanding mate or friend who can help them to see things in better perspective.

While the dynamism of the December 11th person generally carries them through most difficulties, they can experience tremendous psychological stress that requires an almost physical withdrawal from the fray in order to recharge their batteries. After doing so, they are capable of coming back from the most dire circumstances, often more resilient than before and stronger for having "gone through the fire."

In areas leadership, the December 11th person is generally able to assume great responsibility in work and ideas, but is perhaps not best placed in positions that require impartial arbitration. Those born on this day take matters of right and wrong very seriously and may become condemning and judgmental. And often to compound matters, they may not realize the very great effect their words can have on others.

The Day of Dynamic Drive

With their active minds busy with so many thoughts, at times this can be at odds with the emotional aspect of their being, making it difficult for them to calm down and focus. Only by learning to cultivate greater willpower and by putting things into the proper perspective can they become more aware of themselves and the effects they have on others.

“In each action we must look beyond the action at our past, present and future state, and at others whom it affects, and see the relation of all those things.”

Blaise Pascal

“I Judge”

TAROT CARD for December 11th: XI JUSTICE

Seated between two pillars is an imposing figure staring straight ahead. Symbolizing harmony by balancing opposites, the raised right hand holds the sword of justice and mercy, while the left hand balances scales. With open eyes, this figure represents the need to look fearlessly at your actions, past and present, and to make decisions based on impartial truth and honesty. No blindfolds here.

Strongly influenced by this card, the December 11th individual has fair and balanced honest judgment as long as they keep straight the motives behind their actions, in both business and personal relationships. At times if you become isolated by some harsh opinion or have some unforgiveness toward a person or situation, it is important to look for the truth and not just the facts.

The upturned sword represents mercy and compassion, both for ourselves and others. No one can behave above their own level of understanding. Don't expect others to act any differently than they can; don't assume people could or should behave better - they're working at their own level of understanding. As are we all.

We must respond to every event in life and are constantly called upon to exercise discrimination and judgment - a fact of existence. Justice allows us to see the truth of any situation, to acknowledge our own choices and to take responsibility for the results of our actions.

The imaginative and stylish qualities of the December 11th individuals, accompanied by character, idealism and energy provides the basis for them to accomplish great things. When looking at career opportunities, remember it isn't so much about the money, it's more about what your role will be. Job satisfaction is not predicated on salary alone.

Advice: Have faith in your indomitable energy and understanding to undertake even your loftiest goals. Use your intellect and powers of persuasion to accomplish your objectives, all the while being aware of the profound effect you have on others.

“Only through the capacity to see all relevant factors, to weigh them fairly, and to place them in relation to each other, can we hope to reach an accurately balanced judgment.”

B.H.L. Hart
